

office of the privacy
commissioner
new south wales

PRIVACY AWARENESS MONTH MAY 2017

A HEALTHY FUTURE FOR PRIVACY

PRIVACY AWARENESS MONTH

Privacy Awareness Month (PAM) is held annually and this year was bigger than ever. From updated Info-sheets to new animations, the A/NSW Privacy Commissioner has produced a range of helpful content for both public sector organisations as well as individuals in the NSW community. Go to www.ipc.nsw.gov.au/PAM-2017 to see all the updated content.

PRIVACY AND YOU

If you haven't seen by now, privacy is increasingly becoming a discussion point for both organisations and individuals in the community.

With the increasing flows and use of personal information online, privacy is becoming more of a concern for the community, even for those who may not have considered it an issue before. Privacy is a basic human right and enables the exercise of other human rights such as freedom of expression.

The A/NSW Privacy Commissioner urges both organisations and individuals to take responsibility for the management of privacy, both at work and at home and to remember that privacy matters.

PRIVACY MATTERS

01

Don't forget what you've learned throughout Privacy Awareness Month! Download the resources and keep them handy! Go to www.ipc.nsw.gov.au/PAM-2017 and get your copies today!

02

Don't forget your ABCs and do regular online privacy check-ups. It's important to remember that your privacy is your right and to respect others' privacy when handling personal information.

03

Remember that #privacymatters! If you have experienced a breach of your personal privacy, contact the Office of the NSW Privacy Commissioner to get guidance on (02) 9258 0066 or go to our website: www.ipc.nsw.gov.au/privacy